Summer Literacy Program

Program basics

During this program, volunteers will facilitate small reading groups for the participants who will be grouped by reading level. The program participants will be incoming first through fifth grade students. They will participate in 45 minute reading groups. They will be grouped with students on similar reading levels who are available at the same time as they are. Each student will be assessed through a running record before entering the program and after his or her last lesson (the data will be used in the program's self evaluation).

FAQs

Q: Can my child enroll in this program?

A: If your child is entering first through fifth grade and lives in the greater Norwalk area, he or she is welcomed to sign up. Please contact us for more information.

Q: I am a teen looking for a summer volunteer opportunity. Do you take volunteers?

A: Not only do we want volunteers, we can't run the program without them. Please contact us for more information.

Q: Why is the program free?

A: There is no fee to participate because we want all Norwalk students to have access to literacy instruction in the summer. In addition, the program is part of a research project on the effectiveness of drop-in summer literacy programs.

FAQs (continued)

Q: I have a busy schedule. How will I be able to bring my child?

A: The point of a drop-in program is to accommodate everyone's busy schedules. Just let us know when you can bring your child for a 45 minute session and we will make every effort to make it work. In addition, you can participate in as many or as few sessions as will work for you and your family.

Q: My child has specific learning needs, will he or she be able to benefit from this program?

A: Yes, because our program utilizes individual and small group instruction we will be able to adapt the instruction to meet each child's learning needs. If you have specific concerns, feel free to contact us.
